

9 area road separations studied

MONROE BREWER, city engineer of Granite City, points to areas where overpasses and underpasses may be constructed as part of a massive rail relocation program in this area.

Planners of a major rail relocation project for this area said nine rail crossings in the Granite City area are under study for possible future grade separations (overpasses or underpasses).

Andy Waraba of Lester B. Knight and Associates planning firm in Chicago told the Press-Record yesterday that his firm is studying grade crossings under contract with the St. Louis Metro Area Rail Gateway Enterprise (MARGE) study.

MARGE proposes to remove unsightly rail spurs and yards from the Mississippi riverfront in Illinois and to streamline rail traffic through the St. Louis area by consolidating numerous rail yards into two or three improved yards, including the massive Madison yards.

Such relocation of rail traffic will have significant impact on the numbers of trains which use each crossing in the area, so those impacts, along with ways to minimize the delays to motorists, are under study.

If MARGE becomes a reality, it will utilize large sums of money from federal and state sources, the railroads and other sources.

Among the possibilities being studied is construction of numerous overpasses and underpasses in the study area, which stretches from Mitchell south to 25th Street and Niedringhaus Avenue. In addition, rail traffic along the "Q" corridor is expected to decline under the MARGE plan, as most traffic is expected to utilize a corridor east of Granite City.

However, Waraba said, the Market Street crossing near State Street will experience additional traffic, since it will be a switching leads track for the expanded Madison yards.

The Route 162 crossing should be given major consideration, since much of the increased rail traffic is expected to use that corridor, which already is the scene of long delays for motorists.

West Pontoon Road also is expected to be among the final candidates for consideration, since there are no other crossings within miles. However, economic factors may play an important part in the West Pontoon consideration, since it is believed any grade separation will have to span both the railroad tracks and Namont Road.

Acquisition of some property now in commercial use may be necessary for overpasses or underpasses for West Pontoon Road.

A separation at 25th Street also has geographic factors on its side, since there are not other crossings in the vicinity.

Granite City Engineer Monroe Brewer, who serves on a technical advisory committee for MARGE, cautioned against being overly optimistic about getting overpasses, saying the thrust of the MARGE study seems to be on improving East St. Louis.

"They are more interested in (freeing) 1,000 acres in East St. Louis than in rail improvements. And, they are more interested in rail improvements than in Granite City problems," Brewer believes.

He says trying to make Granite City's concerns understood at the committee meetings "is like beating your head against a wall. They just say, 'Rail traffic will increase or double in your area anyway, even if MARGE does not go through, so you are not losing anything.' That's the type of thinking I am trying to fight," Brewer stated.

Frank Madonia, deputy director for the Division of Public Transportation, Illinois Department of Transportation, said the MARGE program has finished its first planning phase and is halfway into the phase in which the program

Air quality improving, speakers say

By GARY SCHNEIDER of the Press-Record

A thoughtful and well-planned program to balance "the three Es," energy, ecology and economy, was advocated by speakers at a joint meeting on Air Pollution held Monday night in the American Legion Post 113 home, 1825 State St.

Speakers included David Wilson of the Coalition for the Environment; Dr. Stephen Ayres, a department chairman at St. Louis University Hospital; Paula Case, air pollution engineer for the Granite City Air Pollution Control Department; Wallace Weidner, president of Steelworkers Local 67 of Granite City Steel; and David Dowling, a safety committeeman for Local 67. Wilson said tremendous strides have been made in the last decade on fighting air pollution, mostly because people have made their feelings clear—they want clean air.

"Informed and active citizens can have a lot of impact on the effect governmental agencies have on pollution control," Wilson said.

He called the 1970s "the environmental decade" as the government began looking at the health impact of pollution. It was the beginning of the "great cleanup," the speaker told the group of about 25 persons at the meeting.

He said new technology has made it possible to control much of the pollution which could not be controlled before, but industries and consumers have to be willing to pay the costs involved.

"In the 1980s, there will be greater discussion of the health effects and whether it is worth the expense to clean up. That's where the trade-off comes in. Many fear the loss of jobs from environmental regulations," Wilson summarized.

Dowling said that in his every day dealings with Granite City Steel, he sees dangers to workers, but works "hand-in-hand" with plant management to assure that "mutual goals" are reached, including employment and production.

Collective bargaining has been a useful tool to workers in reducing the danger in their working areas and new contract negotiations are underway now which include a variety of health issues.

Among the areas of concern are general air pollution, hydrochloric acid fumes and noise pollution. He said the Steelworkers were active in supporting legislation under which OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Act) inspectors were empowered to visit plants without notice and cite the operators for violations endangering the health of employees.

However, Dowling said, when acid fumes were a concern in the pickling line, OSHA came in with sensitive equipment and reported it was unable to find any trace of acid fumes.

Still, Dowling said, OSHA has aided workers for 10 years and contended, "The right wing is trying to strip it of its power. OSHA is under attack and we are going to fight to keep it from being stripped of its power."

He also expressed concern over the pace in which Granite City Steel coke ovens are being improved. He quoted statistics he said showed that workers who have been on the top of coke ovens five years run 10 times the risk of contracting lung cancer than the average American and those working on the bottom of coke ovens are 2% times more likely to have lung cancer than the general public.

The danger is spread to the nearby residents, he contended. "Work we do in the plant will have an effect on the community. Work by the community (fighting air pollution) will affect those who work in the plant," Dowling said. He also contended there should be more nationwide air pollution standards, so businesses cannot threaten to move away from areas with strict pollution standards, thus leaving workers in those areas unemployed.

Weidner said that as president of the union he represents the interests of the workers in the plant. The interests include keeping their jobs, as well as improving health conditions.

Weidner said, "We have to have industry. We have to have work. However, we cannot be concerned about corporate profits to the point we have individual suffering," Weidner said.

He said persons willing to become involved—to write letters to legislators and others, to report suspected air pollution violations, to lobby in Springfield and to take other measures—can help bring about improvements. "We can take responsibility to improve things. Not overnight...it will take time."

"We can work together for the good of the people and the workers. We have good industry and good jobs, but we have pollution, too. We can work on pollution and keep the jobs so our children and grandchildren will have good industry and good jobs," Weidner concluded.

Mrs. Case said her department is doing everything it can to monitor pollution from all Granite City industries, but its powers are limited. "Granite City Steel has 30 environmental people and we have 4% on a daily basis," she explained.

However, with the cooperation of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency in Collinsville, changes are being made in all local industries to improve the air and end the situation in which Granite City has the worst particulate problem (in the air) in the state.

Mrs. Case predicted that rapid improvements will be seen in the future in air quality. "I hope production can be kept up and air pollution can be kept down," she concluded.

Dr. Ayres reviewed the dangers of air pollution on the human body and said, "As physicians, our goal is for everyone to live to be 100 years old and to live life to the fullest."

Human lungs are vulnerable to air pollution because they are exposed directly to the air. Human lung, if all its surface was laid out, would cover about the area of a tennis court, he explained and said the lungs have, "a very public nature."

Dr. Ayres also said that there have been great strides in fighting air pollution since the Citizens for Clean Air began their efforts in the early 1960s.

The federal government then got involved in three areas, air pollution, occupational health and cigarette smoking. Cancer has been a major concern and chemicals coming from industrial smoke stacks is considered second, only after cigarette smoking, in the danger of producing cancer," the doctor said.

"Not smoking is the job for the in-

Trial begins in $15 million suit here

The rise and fall of the financial empire of developer James C. Green was reviewed by his attorney, Rex Carr, in court in Granite City yesterday as the jury trial opened in Green's $15 million lawsuit against the Alton Telegraph and two of its reporters.

A jury of seven men and five women listened as Carr presented his opening statement, describing how Green rose from a pipetteur to the head of two million plus corporations and then had his credit cut off late in 1969, leading to the end of his construction empire.

The lawsuit alleges that in March, 1969, the Alton Telegraph Printing Co., through reporters Joseph Melosi and William Lhotka, composed "a false and defamatory letter" about Green's financial dealings and mailed the letter to Brian Conboy of the U.S. Department of Justice in Washington, D.C.

According to Carr, the letter contended that the late Don Hazel was the number two crime boss in the county at that time and had commitments with the Jim Greyn Construction, which subsequently grew to one of the largest contractors in the county.

It also hinted that there may have been kickbacks to the contractor from the Plaza Federal Savings & Loan Association in Alton, which financed most of Green's projects, Carr explained.

When Conboy read the letter, he wrote a letter to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLB) in Chicago which basically repeated the allegations, saying they were from a "confidential, informed source," Carr said, displaying both letters.

The FHLB then wrote its investigators, who were looking into dealings of Plaza, relaying basically the same information to them, the jury was told.

The result of those letters, Carr said, was the halting of credit to Green by Plaza in November, 1969, and a major investigation into alleged Mafia investments in Plaza. Because of the alleged Mafia involvement, the FHLB froze all loans by Plaza for one of two weeks, but then resumed loans to everyone except Green and John Saffo, Carr said.

Word of the investigation became widely known among the citizens of Alton, many of whom withdrew their money from Plaza and subsequently caused the collapse of Plaza, Carr explained.

In a 10 month period, depositors at Plaza withdrew $2.5 million more than was invested during that period, Carr told the jury.

"Everyone knew about the investigation and Green being cut off. He went to a hall," Carr stated. Green could not borrow elsewhere and most of his savings of $861,000 with Plaza were locked up to secure down payment agreements with several persons who had purchased property from Green. The savings were subsequently lost.

Mary Bruemmer honored

Miss Mary A. Bruemmer of Madison, dean of student affairs at St. Louis University, has been named Honoree of the Year by the Jesuit Student Personnel Administrators during its April conference in Los Angeles, Calif. Miss Bruemmer lives at 1531 Fourth St.

She was honored for "a life dedicated to the ideal of Jesuit higher education exemplified by her professional accomplishments and her warm personal concern for her institution, her colleagues and her students."

"I consider it an honor to be selected by a panel of my peers from candidates nationwide," Miss Bruemmer said. "Their recognition makes my efforts all the more gratifying."

The Conference of Jesuit Student Personnel Administrators last year saluted the Rev. Victor Yanitelli, S.J., then retiring as president of St. Peter's College, and a former president of the Conference.

This award follows a long list of honors Miss Bruemmer has received, including her recent selection as national vice-president of the Jesuit honor society, Alpha Sigma Nu, and 1977 "Woman of the Year" by St. Louis University's Women's Resources Coordinating Council.

In 1965 Miss Bruemmer was the keynote speaker at a Denver workshop when Jesuit student personnel administrators first defined policies and practices to be implemented at Jesuit institutions. She also contributed the chapter on housing in the widely used Jesuit Student Personnel Programs and Services manual.

In 1942, Miss Bruemmer graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor's degree in education from St. Louis University and returned in 1946 as director of Marguerite Hall after 12 years of public relations experience.

Receiving her master's in education in 1950, she was appointed director of women's housing, and then dean of women in 1967. Her dedication to all students was acknowledged in 1976 when she was appointed dean of student affairs.

She is a graduate of Madison High School.

Airman James R. Thurman Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Thurman Sr., of 1855 Joy Ave., has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

Airman Thurman is a 1979 graduate of Granite City South High School.

What to do in an IRS audit

April 15 is past. All but a delinquent few tax forms have arrived at their destination and the Internal Revenue Service has set its computers to the task of examining them for accuracy.

Now what will you do if your 1980 is selected for an audit?

According to Chicago tax attorney George Brode Jr., tens of thousands of Americans will confront that question in coming months. With huge fines hanging in the balance, and prison terms as long as five years, the answer can be important.

Brode is chairman of the Illinois State Bar Association's Federal Taxation Section Council, a group with 2,900 Illinois lawyers members who deal with Federal tax law. Following are his ISBA council's suggestions for those who receive an IRS call:

Support the deductions in question.

Prepare for the audit. Gather W-2 forms, receipts and all other documents needed to answer the IRS questions. The ISBA suggests documentation be arranged in the order the various elements appear on the tax form.

Be prepared to wait. The ISBA observes it is common for the Internal Revenue Service to arrange for groups of people to arrive at the same time.

This means chances are good that a taxpayer, despite having an appointment, will have to spend time in the waiting room.

The suggestion is to avoid anger by being prepared with a book or crossword puzzle.

Be businesslike in your dealings with the agent. The ISBA says it is wise to treat the agent as the investigator he is, rather than as the friend that he isn't. Many taxpayers, nervous at being audited, fall into what tax experts know as the "Mother Quail Syndrome," and attempt by means of friendly chatter, to draw the agent's attention away from the matters at hand. In the midst of all this talk, it is possible for a taxpayer to innocently say something that makes the agent curious about still another area of the person's tax return. Relax. Be courteous, not garrulous, the ISBA suggests.

Be specific. The ISBA urges taxpayers undergoing an audit to stick to the issues raised by the IRS at the time of the audit notification. If unexpected questions arise or if additional documents are requested, the taxpayer has the right to ask for time to research the answers or to retain counsel, and will be wise to take it. A taxpayer should not ordinarily refuse to answer a question or produce a document unless so advised by his or her tax consultant, the ISBA says.

Never lie. According to the ISBA, do not make a false statement on a return or to an investigator. False statements to the IRS, whether or not they are made under oath, may subject that person to a fine of up to $1,000 or imprisonment of up to one year, or both.

Know your appeal rights. The IRS auditor may reach the conclusion that the taxpayer owes additional tax, but according to the ISBA, that does not mean the issue is necessarily closed. There are two levels of appeal within the Internal Revenue Service structure.

Legitimate goal was perhaps best expressed by Judge Learned Hand when he wrote, "Anyone may so arrange his affairs that his taxes shall be as low as possible; he is not bound to choose that pattern which will best pay the Treasury; there is not even a patriotic duty to increase one's taxes."

Finance plan for Ronald McDonald unit

Robert A. Jacob, McDonald's owner-operator and treasurer of Children's Oncology Services of Metro St. Louis, Inc., announced today that McDonald's of Metro St. Louis, Inc., will launch a promotional effort in all stores to raise funds for the St. Louis Ronald McDonald House.

Between May 2 and May 18, for every large or medium size soft drink purchased at McDonald's restaurant, ten cents will be set aside for the Ronald McDonald House. The fund-raise is similar to those held in other cities to support local Ronald McDonald Houses. The first such effort was in Philadelphia, when Philadelphia Eagle football player Fred Hill enlisted the aid of his team members, Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and McDonald's to open the first Ronald McDonald House. Hill's daughter was being treated for leukemia, and he realized the need for an economical, convenient place for families to stay to be near their hospitalized children. There are now 15 Ronald McDonald Houses across the country, each one assisted financially by local McDonald's Restaurants.

N&W revenues show increase

Norfolk and Western Railway has reported record net income and revenues for the first quarter, John P. Flawick, president and chief executive officer, told financial analysts here.

The railroad, headquartered in Roanoke, Va., had first quarter earnings of $40.4 million, or $1.55 a share, up from $37.8 million a year earlier.

First quarter operating revenues were $371.2 million, up 13 percent from $327.8 million a year earlier. The previous first quarter net income and revenue records were set in the 1979 period. Railway operating expenses in the first quarter were $300 million, up 16 percent from $258.5 million a year earlier. Expenses rose more rapidly than revenues because of an 83 percent increase in the price of diesel fuel, higher material prices, and 10 percent higher wage rates.

Taiwan buys $15 million in U.S. farm products

Agricultural purchases totaling more than $15 million were among the $27.2 million worth of products purchased from Illinois firms last week by the fifth special procurement mission from the Republic of China.

H. K. Shao, director general of the Board of Foreign Trade of Taiwan, led the mission which agreed to buy 90,000 metric tons of corn, valued at $15.5 million, and 325 head of Duroc swine, worth nearly $225,000.

The trade mission, which was in Illinois from April 19-23, was hosted by the Illinois Department of Agriculture, and Illinois' Department of Commerce and Community Affairs.

The corn being purchased will total 30,000 metric tons each from the Gulf Coast Grain, Inc., Peavey Co., and Bunge Corp.

The Duroc breeding swine—165 gilts and 160 boars—will be shipped to Taiwan by an El Paso firm, Illinois Produce International, Inc.

Eugene Kline, livestock agent for the export company, said most of the top quality Durocs needed to fulfill the order will be purchased from Illinois breeders. He said near-perfect test records will be required of the sires of the hogs chosen.

A representative of the Taiwan Sugar Corp., which will be expanding its swine operation, will be in Illinois a month from now to inspect the gilts and boars selected. They will be flown to Taiwan in mid-June.

Nameoki seniors van recalled

Nameoki Township officials returned the senior citizens van it had been using to the Beuckman Ford in Collinsville yesterday, at the request of the dealership. In a letter to the township, the Beuckman agency requested the van be returned. "A general slowdown in business and rising interest rates" were cited as the reason the program of offering vans to groups to use for senior citizens' transportation was discontinued.

Last year, Beuckman received the vans from several smaller communities, including Venice, but continued the Nameoki Township project. The vans were used to take senior citizens to the grocery stores, doctors and other important errands.

As the financial climate for auto dealerships deteriorated, however, it became necessary for Beuckman to end all programs in which donated vans were used.

The Nameoki Town Board of Trustees Monday night indicated its disappointment that the program was being discontinued and vowed to seek other avenues of funding so free transportation can be offered again, in the future, to senior citizens.

The Beuckman firm pledged that if finances improve to the point it could consider reestablishing the program, the township would have a high priority for one of the first vans.

In other business, the board was told that a "missing" $18,858 which the township received in 1964 had been accounted for.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development notified the township recently that it would like the township to repay the $18,858 HUD advanced to the township for planning a sewer program.

The trustees indicated they knew nothing about the money and office employees were asked to search the records for any such advance.

The search disclosed that the money had been used for planning a sewer program which never was built. The board Monday night turned the question over to its attorney.

Subsequent conversations with HUD officials indicate the money may not have to be repaid if the project it was used for was never constructed.

A bid from Beuckman of $5,566 to supply a truck for the township's humane officer was opened and a contract awarded. Although it was the only bid, board members said they had priced similar trucks at other dealers and felt the bid was a fair one.

An agreement between the highway department and the town board allowing a tornado warning siren to be put on a township right-of-way in Arlington Heights was approved by the board.

The siren is to be installed in the next few days, the board was told. The cost is being paid from federal revenue sharing funds.

It was reported that the township office has received numerous complaints from elderly residents who asked to have their lawns mowed and were told the program is operating, but has been running behind schedule. All requests received will be answered, those present were told.

Off-Campus Education banquet is set Tuesday

Buddy Davis, director of subdistrict 34 of the United Steelworkers of America, will be the speaker at the sixth annual Off-Campus Education banquet Tuesday, May 6.

Don Shaffner, off-campus coordinator, announced the event will be held at the Township Building auditorium, 21st Street and Delmar Avenue, to show appreciation to the various employers throughout the community and recognize the efforts of the students who have participated in an Off-Campus Education program.

The banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. and is to conclude at 8:30 p.m. The dinner will be catered.

All students from both North and South High Schools have been invited to attend. Last year more than 400 students attended the event.

Davis, who lives at Wood River, has been director of the Granite City steelworkers district, since his election in June 1977. Previously he served as subdistrict director from 1975 to 1977, and has been a member of the international staff since 1962.

Delay McCabe trial

The Florida trial of Jerry Lee McCabe, 26, of the 3900 block of Central Lane, is likely to be postponed beyond its originally scheduled date of Monday, authorities here have been told.

M McCabe's trial could begin in the docket call between May 4 and 6, but it is likely the public defender appointed for McCabe will file for a continuance.

The Granite City man is being held without bond in Titusville, Fla., for allegedly molesting a New York woman in her motel room in Palm Bay, Fla., April 2. He is charged with kidnapping, sexual battery, robbery, burglary and second-degree grand theft in connection with the Florida incident.

Smith strike continues

The strike of 650 members of the United Auto Workers Union local 1715, continued today at the A.O. Smith auto transfer plant without plans for further discussions of contract terms.

This walkout began Tuesday, April 8, after negotiations were broken off in a stalemate over wage increases sought by the union.

Further talks will be arranged by the U.S. Mediation Service, Clayton, Mo., whose office reported today that no arrangements for a meeting between company and union officials have been made.

DRIVER IS ARRESTED

Madison council votes to withdraw protests of Venice housing

The Madison City Council voted unanimously at its meeting Tuesday evening to withdraw city objections to a privately funded housing project to be located in Venice on the former John Manville property.

Madison Mayor Mike Sayk said that further study had dispelled the majority of the reasons for earlier objections.

It was pointed out by the mayor that 90 percent or more of the occupants will come from families already residing in the Madison School District 12 and will not add to the financial burden of the schools.

It was further noted that senior citizens will be included in the project and will occupy about 40 percent of the 91 units to be built. If the project is approved.

The council authorized a letter be sent to the regional office of the U.S. Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Agency withdrawing the city's objections to the project.

East European Friends lauded at SIUE event

The efforts of organizations such as the Slavic and East European Friends of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville have been a major factor in the development of the University, according to Earl Lazerson, acting president of SIUE.

Lazerson was the keynote speaker during the weekend at the 15th annual conference of the Slavic and East European Friends. The program was highlighted by academic presentations and films and more than an hour of folk dances and songs presented by the Polish Culture Troupe, Yugoslav Culture Troupe, Bulgarska Kitka and David Stasa Singers.

Citing the growth of ethnic studies at the University, Lazerson told the festival participants, "You have been pioneers in an area of academic exploration which is gaining in importance. The abundant resources you have provided for our archives have done much to enrich our understanding already."

"Through the years, many of our students have been sustained, inspired and rewarded by your loans and your honor awards... SIUE would be certainly the poorer without the Slavic and Eastern European Friends," the president said.

He added: "You have acted as a constant inspiration to us to keep faith with our responsibility as conservators of the cultural heritage of our citizens."

Lazerson said he is encouraging the University's Ethnic Studies Committee to "move forward with all possible dispatch with planning which will incorporate a considered and disciplined approach to the enrichment of our curriculum."

The president explained, "Ethnic studies, pursued as a scholarly discipline with a properly defined place in the curriculum of a liberal education, can act as the conservator of all the colorations and distinctive features that make human life in society so worthy of our diligent research, our historic preservation, and our civilized discourse."

"Such studies seek to preserve the essential values of community, identity, traditions and family solidarity. It is fair to say that these values have remained strong in the part of Illinois we were founded to serve."

Emphasizing that the region served by the University is a "microcosm" of the entire United States, Lazerson said, "We are also a society in which many ethnic groups are finding ways not only to live together amiably, but to enjoy each other happily."

The University president lauded the recent "ethnic awakenings" which have made people realize that America is not a "melting pot" that deprives ethnic groups of their cultures and traditions. "Humankind, like Joseph in the Scriptures wears a coat of many colors. In my view, we can only realize those conditions conducive to peaceful and humane wisdom by conserving and respecting all the great national and cultural traditions that comprise the world we have inherited," he said.

Lazerson said the University is pleased to provide an archive for preserving books, documents and artifacts which trace the origins of the Slavic and East European groups in this area. "It is our duty to secure, conserve and disseminate the full truth of our regional history," he said. "Because these ethnic groups were so loyal to their origins, so dedicated to leaving us the legacies of their lives as they were actually lived, we are all the richer for it."

"In celebrating the diversity of ethnic richness, observing highly individualized ways of life existing side by side in the region that is our common home, we dramatize the kind of human community in which the full spectrum of our dreams and aspirations can be fulfilled," Lazerson concluded.

SHOOT AT SHELTER

A shotgun blast was fired at the west side of the Granite City Humane Shelter on Missouri Avenue, damaging a window screen and causing debris in the wall. Police know of no motive for the shooting.

Car donated for study by auto shop students

Pontiac cars that used to end up on the "junk pile" are now getting excellent mileage, although never driven on the road.

One such car is a Grand Prix recently donated to Granite City District Vocational Automotive Shop. It is one of more than 1,500 Pontiac cars damaged by wrecks, floods, and other mishaps on the way to dealerships over the past 16 years which have been given to schools to help in automotive mechanical training for young men and women.

"We feel the vehicle donation program is a useful alternative to 'scrapping' damaged cars, as we once did," Byron Strausser, Pontiac's director of service, said.

"We have donated damaged vehicles to schools in nearly every state in the country, as well as major automotive components such as engines and transmissions, for use in vocational training," he added.

Strausser pointed out that schools receiving cars must sign an agreement to ensure that the cars will never be driven. Donation tags are, fastened to the cars and their identification numbers are removed by Pontiac. Schools and institutions receiving the cars must be non-profit organizations.

Damaged cars and components are available through Pontiac's 27 zone sales and service offices across the country. The zone service staff keeps a list of requests for such cars, and when they become available, schools are notified, Strausser explained.

sequently used to pay delinquent mortgage payments, interest and creditors, he added.

Green scrambled for funds so he could complete several large construction projects and stay solvent, Carr explained.

Green went to Madison Mayor Mike Sayk, who had a credit line with Plaza of between $400,000 and $600,000, and Sayk agreed to borrow $300,000 and give it to Green, the attorney told the jury.

However, when Sayk told Plaza officials he planned to give the money to Green, a Plaza official called the FBI in Chicago and was told he could not loan Sayk any money, if Sayk was going to give the money to Green, Carr contended.

Among the projects Green had agreed to build was a housing project for the U.S. Government. When his credit halted and his personal savings were frozen, Green was unable even to pay his withholding taxes, Carr said.

As a result, the bonding company which secured Green's loans had to complete all of his building projects, the U.S. Internal Revenue Service took a $150,000 lien against all of Green's assets and mortgage foreclosures consumed all of the projects Green was working on, the jury was told.

The FBI questioned Green and he had to appear before a grand jury, Carr said.

Since 1972, Green has been a carpenter in Belleville and the IRS still has a lien against him, the attorney concluded.

Carr said he intends to prove during the trial that the investigation into Plaza and Green showed no evidence of Mafia involvement or deposits or no truth to the allegations in the letter written by the Alton Telegraph reporters to the U.S. Justice Department.

During his successful years, Green was the developer and contractor for Gaslight Walk, many of the Arlington Heights apartment complexes and numerous other four-family and apartment complexes throughout the area. He also constructed many single-family homes in Granite City, Pontoon Beach and other areas.

Green started his career working for Granite City Steel, while he constructed a home for himself. He later sold that home and was constructing another when officials of Plaza stopped and asked for directions. They asked him if he would like to finance the house he was building with Plaza.

He did and a condition of mutual trust developed with Green building and selling homes and Plaza always financing the work. In 1963, Green quit Granite City Steel and went into building full-time. His work included remodeling homes which Plaza had foreclosed on from other owners, Carr said.

Green expanded into building apartments and by about 1966, he had equity of more than $1.5 million in buildings. By mid-1969, his equity had grown to about $5 million to $6 million and he had savings accounts of about $1 million.

During the same period, Plaza grew to the largest savings & loan association in the area, Carr stated.

The suit against the Alton Telegraph, which seeks $5 million in actual damages and $10 million in punitive damages, is one of several suits Green has filed against individuals and groups in connection with the halting of credit which allegedly caused his financial downfall.

Carr said Plaza had talked Green into buying out several projects Hazel was developing in 1967 or 1968, after the Alton Telegraph wrote stories showing that Hazel had about $1 million to $1.5 million worth of projects financed with Plaza and questioned the loan policies of the savings and loan.

After stories about Green began circulating, the Plaza officials attempted to get one of Green's associates to buy in East St. Louis, Carr contended. "It was the Don Hazel story all over again," he added. That sale was never completed because "Plaza was under attack," in Carr's words.

will be ready to implement when given final approval.

Madonia met with engineers for the project Tuesday afternoon to move the project from the study stage to the planning stage and instructed them to prepare plans for implementing the program, he told the Press-Record.

Structural studies of McKinley, Merchants and Arthur bridges have been completed, but estimates of the cost to improve them to handle anticipated rail traffic cannot be made until other MARGE consultants complete the projected rail traffic studies.

McKinley Bridge has some problems and has been out of service for railroads, I understand, for about one year. It would require an extreme amount of work because of the wood trestle and approach problems," Madonia said.

He explained the approaches to McKinley Bridge are not a location which makes it convenient to the expanded Madison yard.

However, the possibility of improving McKinley bridge for use for future rail traffic has not been ruled out, he emphasized.

Social, environmental, economic and energy effects of any proposed change need to be considered carefully and environmental impact statements approved before work can be done.

The $3 million price-tag for the work is being picked up by a $2 million grant from the Federal Railroad Administration, $700,000 from IDOT, $200,000 by St. Louis city and county and more than $100,000 from the railroads.

Two plans are being studied simultaneously. One calls for a new major rail yards and the other is the three-yard alternative. In either, the Madison yards would be improved and the Higgins II yard Great St. Louis would be moved to Madison to aid in moving rail traffic through the St. Louis corridor.

Overpass bonds signed

The issuance and sale of $2,580,000 in bonds, completing the financing for construction of the 19th Street overpass at a cost of $5.9 million, was finalized Tuesday in Chicago with the signing of the bonds.

The bonds—more than 500 of them—were signed by Mayor Paul Schuler and City Clerk Robert Stevens. The bonds were sold to Clayton Brown & Associates, Chicago investment firm, as a plan providing for retirement of the bond principal and interest by Granite City Steel division of National Steel Corp., and from the city's motor fuel tax fund.

Thus, no tax rate will need to be extended to pay off the general obligation issue, Granite City Steel will pay $1.7 million of the issue in return for the city's abandonment of a proposal to levy a utility tax against gas and electric usage as a means of raising the balance of the overpass financing. The remaining $600,000 in bonds will be retired from the city's motor fuel tax account.

As the financing procedures were being completed in Chicago, work progressed on the construction project, the first step of which is installation of a 24-inch stormwater sewer from West 20th Street to the access road north of the railroad tracks. The work is being done by C.D. Peters Co.

Relocation of utilities also is under way by the American Water Co. and by Illinois Power Co.

Mayor Schuler noted the bond signing in Chicago Tuesday marked the culmination of more than ten years of efforts to build the downtown overpass spanning the railroad tracks and eliminating long tieups by freight trains.

Mayor Schuler said the bond proceeds are to be sent to the First Granite City National Bank where the funds will draw interest until needed to pay contractors.

The overpass will be built by the Millstone Construction Co. of St. Louis which was awarded the contract by the Illinois Department of Transportation on a low bid of $5,943,549.

After signing the bonds, Mayor Schuler, Stevens and City Treasurer Nick Petrillo who accompanied them, attended sessions Wednesday and again today of a regional seminar on federal revenue sharing funds which was held in Chicago.

Police capture two in attic

Lamar Freeman, 18, of 907 West Washington St., Madison, and Warren W. "Puzzie" Wagner, 25, of 1214 Douglas Ave., Venice, are being held pending posting of $25,000 bond each.

The two men have each been charged with burglary and criminal damage to property to the Dunbar School Annex, Madison. Damage and missing property was estimated by police at $10,000.

Detective Sgt. Paul Bargiel while on a routine patrol noticed a metal screen pried back and a window open.

He got out of his car and as he approached the building

he heard sounds coming from the attic area, he reported.

He then went back to the police car and radioed for assistance.

The two men have each been charged with burglary and criminal damage to property to the Dunbar School Annex, Madison. Damage and missing property was estimated by police at $10,000.

When verbal attempts failed to convince the two to come out, Chief Bridick went in, authorities said. Bridick said he found them and ordered them out at gun point.

EARN TROPHIES

Air quality

dividual. Cleaning up the air and the work place is the job of government, industry and the populace. Unless we stand up and be heard, it is not possible.

Henry Bienencki, a city resident and former city air pollution control official, said he feels progress has been too slow on cleaning up emissions from coke ovens. "They keep me from opening my windows at night to get a breath of fresh air. I have to run my air conditioner, even though it is perfectly cool outside, because I can't open my windows," Bienencki objected.

Walter Franke, administrator of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency office in Collinsville, said his office monitors numerous sources of air pollution in Granite City, including the coke ovens.

He said the Granite City Steel "A battery" coke ovens have been completely rebuilt and were returned to service a few weeks ago. Emissions are greatly reduced.

The "B and C battery" coke ovens are to be rebuilt, from the ground up, beginning in June, and new larry cats and pushing carts will be operating, he said. "A lot has been going on at the coke ovens and I think you will see a vast difference when completed," Franke predicted.

is being made in many areas, not just Granite City Steel, and she stated, "I really believe we will see dramatic differences in the years to come."

Granite City First Ward Alderman Charles Douglas said he does not believe much progress has been made. In the days of the old open hearth furnaces, there was a great deal of fly ash, which people could see. Now there is finer red dust, such as from the basic oxygen furnace, which is difficult to see, he said.

"So, some here now have red houses instead of black houses. I don't see much difference," Douglas said.

Douglas said he also is concerned about limestone dust in the air, which has appeared only in recent years. "We all have a constitutional right for a healthful environment, think it would be helpful for citizens to take arms and work together against industry and pollution," Alderman Douglas said.

Wilson concluded the program, saying, "Public apathy only creates the climate for more of that pollution to exist. We need to make complaints when we see pollution violations." He said citizens meeting together and working together can assure a cleaner and healthier environment in the future.

Hotline saves $3 million

Over $3 million was collected last year through calls made to the Department of Public Aid's Fraud Hotline.

The toll-free number, which has been in use since May, 1975, was established to receive information on abuses of the state's welfare system.

Information received from each call is matched against known case information in an effort to identify ineligible cases on the welfare rolls. Last year 10,698 calls were logged.

The hotline operates 24 hours a day. Callers are asked to provide all possible information about the suspected welfare abuser such as name, address, age, number of children and the name of employer if the recipient is employed. Callers may remain anonymous.

The toll-free number — 800-252-8903 — assists Public Aid by being available to those who may be reluctant to use other means to report instances of suspected welfare abuse, a spokesman said.

Madison reviews procedure for condemnations

By MICK STRANGE of the Press-Record

Concern over the length of time it takes to legally condemn a structure was a topic of concern at the Madison City Council meeting Tuesday evening.

Several Madison residents have been critical of the city administration and Building Inspector John Dutko for not tearing down the home at 1657 Third St.

A fire that apparently was set in the vacant home, which the city has been trying to condemn for several months also destroyed the homes on each side of it.

Mayor Sasyk said, "Many people are asking why we did not board up the property. The fact is that we must follow the law and we could not touch the building until the courts said we could."

"The city can't even put up a barricade without the court order," Sasyk said.

City Attorney Casper S. Nighohossian said the city was preparing condemnation papers for suit, but that on May 3, 1979, Willie Radman, owner of the property at 1657 Third St., and Angelo Jones filed charges in federal court claiming civil rights violations against Dutko, the city attorney, Mayor Sasyk and the City of Madison.

This suit stopped the condemnation proceedings against the property. It was not until Feb. 22, 1980 the federal courts dismissed the case and Radman and Jones had still another 30 days to file an amended complaint, according to Nighohossian.

At the request of Mayor Sasyk, the council approved the hiring of Thomas G. Miller as a consultant on the city cable television project at a salary of $5,000. Three payments are to be made: $1,500 now, $1,500 when the bids are prepared and the $2,000 balance at the end of the project.

The city also agreed to pay Miller's travel expenses from Valparaiso, Fla. in addition to other "out of the pocket expenses."

The council voted to try both Zarn and Rubbermaid trash collection systems for a period of between 60 and 90 days, beginning in about six weeks.

The exact details as to what part of Madison these will be tried in has not been determined.

The city will use about 600 of the trash carts in the test program.

Arthritis forum topic Tuesday

Arthritis will be the topic of a public forum at the St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Ketterer Gymnasium, Tuesday, May 6, at 7 p.m.

The speaker will be Dr. Owen Kantor, a certified specialist in the field of rheumatology and member of the staffs of Barnes, Children's and Shriner's Hospitals.

Following Dr. Kantor's presentation, there will be a question and answer session. Members of the Physical and Occupational Therapy Departments will also be available to demonstrate various forms of treatment.

To make reservations, Quad-Cityans may contact the Public Relations Department at 798-3167.

More than $950 million is spent annually on workable arthritis "cures" and remedies, probably because people have more misinformation about arthritis than any other common disease, according to information received by the Center from the Arthritis Foundation.

Some of the most common misconceptions about arthritis include statements like: "Nothing much can be done for 'arthritis.' 'Arthritis is mostly an old person's disease,' and 'It's all right to diagnose and treat oneself for arthritis.' All of these statements are untrue, it was said.

What is true is that arthritis is the nation's number one crippling disease, but with proper treatment, crippling can often be prevented and pain controlled, the Foundation added.

In spite of the belief that arthritis is an old person's disease, rheumatoid arthritis can start in infancy, and there are at least 250,000 children in the country who have juvenile rheumatoid arthritis.

As for self-treatment for arthritis, the time spent on home remedies or quick cures, delays the initiation of proper treatment, allowing the arthritis to do further joint damage, it was noted.

Not only is arthritis costly in terms of human suffering, afflicting an estimated 31,600,000 Americans, it is expensive in terms of hard cash. In addition to the dollars spent on worthless cures, arthritis costs Americans $4.8 billion in lost wages each year, with an additional $985 million lost in income taxes to the Federal Government, a spokesman asserted.

In spite of the pain and cost of arthritis, it is not a hopeless disease. Diagnosis and medical treatment begun before irreversible joint damage takes place can usually save a patient from the serious effects of the disease, the Foundation explained.

It is of equal importance that people know the facts about arthritis, so that they are able to recognize the warning signs, obtain treatment early and avoid being conned by worthless remedies, according to the spokesman.

Skydiver-groundbreaking Sunday at Central Baptist

Fred Heyenbruch, a champion skydiver and a former instructor for the Wisconsin Skydiving Club, will give his testimony in the 9:45 a.m. service at Central Baptist Church, 3910 Highway 111, according to an announcement by Pastor Wayne Musatics.

He will make his jump starting at over 5,000 feet and will free fall at approximately 175 miles per hour, open his colorful chute and land on target. The skydiver uses a radio system to talk to the crowd during the entire jump.

Heyenbruch has appeared on Wide World of Sports and travels throughout the nation to perform.

Following the skydiving exhibition a groundbreaking ceremony will be conducted at 12:30 p.m. for the new building across the street from the present location, Rev. Musatics added.

The minister noted construction is expected to start within one month.

Recession cuts net earnings

Post Corporation has reported earnings of $317,000 or 17 cents per share during the first quarter of 1979.

A spokesman said "recessionary pressures," especially in the company's newspaper division, plus sharply higher costs of borrowed money, were the principal factors causing earnings to be lower.

Newspaper classified advertising has been hit by the onset of a recession, he said, pointing out that automotive, real estate and help-wanted classifications are among the mainstays of that business and all are showing softness.

The company's operating profit — before depreciation, interest and taxes — was nine percent higher than a year ago. However, a 21 percent increase in depreciation charges and a 28 percent increase in interest costs brought about the lower "bottom line." Cash flow increased from $1,145,000 to $1,162,000.

The broadcast division reported a 14 percent increase in operating profit, with stations in Rochester, N.Y., and Green Bay and Eau Claire, Wis., leading the way.

The company's newest division, the Commercial Printing Division, showed the largest increase in operating results and during the quarter boosted its share of the company's operating earnings to 12½ percent.

Post has newspaper, broadcasting and printing operations in nine states.

A group of local senior citizens have returned home after a three day trip to Rough River Dam State resort park in Kentucky. The trip was by bus.

Enroute the group toured the Graden of the Gods in Shawnee National Forest in Southern Illinois.

While at the resort, the group participated in many social activities including lawn-bowling, shuffleboard, arts and crafts, pinchle, bridge and bingo tournaments, and a Mr. America Contest.

Trophies and prizes were awarded to the winners by the social director. After leaving the resort, a stop was made to visit the historic town of New Harmony in Indiana. There the group toured the new visitors center where a good view of the town was made from the lookout tower. The group also visited the famous redless church there, on the banks of the Wabash river.

Those taking the trip were Dorothy Bridick, Irene Kadane, Marion Ropac, Evelyn Blattner, Julia Minor, Catherine Contrax, Vi Scrivner, Bernadine Cooley, Kate Smith, Elizabeth McCoy, Marie Stanek, Rosemary Breyer, Ann Riddle, Frances Schofield, Helen Valicoff, Leona Herbert, Eva Hansel, Evelyn Crawley, Emma Lottstuter.

The trip coordinator was Dorothy Bridick and the tour escort was Ruth Knapp.

Local cruisers witness rescue

Quad-City area residents who were aboard the cruise ship Song of Norway Luxury Liner were witness to the rescue of 38 Haitians by the ship.

The Haitians were in a 25-foot sailboat near the northeastern tip of Cuba. According to the vice-president for marine operations for Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines, the boat was not in very good shape so the cruise ship rescued the passengers.

Those from Granite City aboard the cruise ship were Mrs. Thelma Jacobsmeier, Mrs. Lorraine Williams, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fritsch, who were honored on the occasion of their 30th wedding anniversary.

Cost control emphasis suggests more SIUE housing

Cost control is of prime importance these days in government as well as business, but some of the financial facts being explored by an Illinois Senate appropriations subcommittee may be a bit misleading.

The subjects are the Southern Illinois University Medical School in Springfield and the SIU Law School in Carbondale. Operating costs for them appear to be unfavorable in comparison with the established schools of medicine and law at the University of Illinois.

The cost of educating each SIU medical student is being estimated at $150,000, compared to $85,000 for the University of Illinois. However, SIU Medical School Dean Richard Moy testified that part of the U. of Illinois costs are included under research grants and teaching hospitals.

SIUE Acting President Hiram Lessor conceded that last year's medical costs were 20 percent higher per student than at the U. of Illinois but said that the costs will be comparable once the SIUE law school reaches its full planned enrollment.

The overall SIU budget of $149 million to be voted on by the full appropriations committee is described as "tough and tight" by Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, who said priority will be placed on upgrading salaries of employees which at present are not competitive with those at other universities. He said increased marketing efforts are being made to attract more students at SIUE, where the 13,000 enrollment of 1970 has dropped to 10,000.

Dr. Shaw noted SIUE has high academic standards, which it won't lower, but that efforts are being made to attract more Missourians, especially graduate students.

SIUE Acting President Earl Lazerson described the local campus as a "people's university" and cited a new construction management program and engineering programs as examples of how it is responding to the needs of this area.

The sharpest enrollment decline, he said, has been in the field of education, in line with a national trend.

Lazerson concluded that legislation to create local mass transit districts will continue the state transit subsidy may permit improved bus service to the campus.

Rather than closing commuter campuses like SIUE due to high gasoline costs, as suggested by Sen. John Groberg, it seems clear the attention needs to be given to providing additional on-campus housing at SIUE.

Not the best way to take the judiciary out of politics

Alton Telegraph—One major problem with the proposed judicial appointment constitutional amendment bill now before the state legislature strikes one between the eyes when its provisions are examined. It's so complicated the voters to whom it will be submitted if the House joins the Senate in approving the referendum call wouldn't understand it. They may even be so puzzled that they won't vote on it.

So the proposal to relieve them of a voting choice will create such a complicated one that they'll be back on it—or vote it down in confusion.

Basically the plan looks simple. It supposedly sets up a three-member panel that would take the judicial bench-filling job out of the voters' hands.

The Senate gave it a 36-21 approval last week—exactly the three-fifths majority needed. Sponsored by a law professor, Sen. Dawn Clark Netelbeck of Chicago, the bill has support from Gov. James R. Thompson.

To begin with, it would allow voters in the individual districts the choice of whether to continue electing judges or to adopt the appointment system.

The voters, themselves, would have to undertake initiative by petition (5 percent of them could set the wheels in motion). Otherwise, election judges would continue as usual. If the matter were submitted to a district referendum a simple majority vote would make it effective.

The amendment to the proposed amendment would require judges to go through the whole election or appointment process each time their terms expired rather than retaining their offices automatically.

We don't know who is trying to confuse whom, but we believe the public would be wiser if the state legislature enacted the amendment's meaning if the proposal had the benefit of a little simplification and didn't try to straddle so many fences.

But we doubt the job can be done this way.

Freedom on only route to full development

An explanation of what First Amendment freedom means to the average American citizen was written recently by Barbara Vroman, a farm wife from Hancock, Wis., who entered a contest sponsored by the National Newspaper Association. She won first prize. Following is her essay:

Freedom is messy. Any woman who has watched her baby pour orange juice in his hair and mash peas on his highchair tray can tell you how messy it is to allow the child to learn to eat on his or her own.

Any totalitarian dictator will tell you how much easier it is to get rid of drug addicts, prostitutes and enemies of the state in a country where there are no First Amendment-type guarantees. In a totalitarian state, things can be done quickly and with order. We would never have to put up with Nazis marching through Skokie.

Freedom is messy. It is a world of price controls, rationing rules with one exception for everyone but bureaucrats. As Mr. Hart said:

"Not many of us will like the kind of world we then will have. The virtual impossibility of fashioning regulatory rules with one exception for everyone but bureaucrats. As Mr. Hart said:

Freedom is dangerous. Many parents feel a certain sinking of the heart the first time they hand over a child to a stranger. He or she could get killed in that traffic jungle out there.

Totalitarian dictators understand well how dangerous freedom can be. Free ideas can threaten the plans of the state, so the press must be controlled.

Free assembly must be restricted for the same reason. Travel must be restricted, for citizens might try to escape the rigors imposed by the other curbs.

Freedom is demanding. The First Amendment gives me the freedom to explore my own avenues and enthusiasms.

The First Amendment gives me the freedom to enjoy the success of my efforts. It allows me the responsibility, as well, of facing my failures so that I may learn and grow from them.

It protects ideas, and everything in the world, from the buttons on my blouse to Social Security, begins as an idea in somebody's head.

When you hamper a man's ideas or the expression of those ideas, you hamper his soul—the very essence of his being. By guaranteeing the free exchange of ideas, the First Amendment insures that I will live in a society fermenting with change and innovation.

The First Amendment is my guarantee of messy, demanding, dangerous, exhilarating, creative, productive freedom. And as any parent can tell you, freedom is the only route to the full development of human capacity.

It is a concept of economic regimentation, which is alien to American traditions. It means denial of economic freedom.

In a society committed to freedom, there's no sound argument for handcuffing the economy with controls.

Other federal programs and activities produce a colossal bill for non-productive activities. Non-productivity means deficits and inflation.

The only way to reduce inflation is to cut back on the federal programs and activities that produce multi-billion dollar deficits.

We need tax reductions that will enable companies to invest in new machinery so that they will be able to compete with the foreign companies that have invaded the U.S. market.

We can't enjoy wealth in the future if our industries are frozen into a condition of industrial inferiority.

Ironically, many of the proponents of controls on prices, wages, dividends, rents, etc., don't call for a freeze on federal spending.

They are all for new government expenditures for "social services."

The price control concept implies a static economy, not one of growth.

Mistrial in kidnap case

A technicality which was overlooked by the prosecution caused a mistrial to be declared Wednesday in the aggravated kidnapping case against Aubrey Reynolds, 27, East St. Louis, in Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville.

Reynolds will be retried May 12 on the charge that he used a knife to force a 15-year-old girl into his truck across from Kirkpatrick Homes Jan. 6. An alert officer parked nearby noticed the girl had disappeared suddenly and followed a truck which had left the scene. When he stopped the truck, the girl allegedly being held at knifepoint.

The mistrial was declared by Circuit Judge Victor J. Mosele on a motion by the defense attorney Edward L. Welch during closing arguments Wednesday. Mosele said the Assistant State's Attorney Stephen Mudge, in presenting the prosecution's case, failed to give testimony that the knife used in the alleged kidnapping was at least three inches long.

Illinois law requires that the knife be at least that length for the charge to be aggravated kidnapping. The knife was in evidence and Mudge gestured toward it, as though its length was self-explanatory, but Mosele granted the defense motion and declared a mistrial.

Many collect twice for one injury

At the same time, members of the General Assembly should take a hard look at repealing another law that serves as a deterrent to business and jobs in this state.

It is the Illinois "Scaffold Act," which was enacted in 1907 to provide a means of compensating construction workers who were injured on the job.

It was made obsolete in 1911, however, by the Illinois Workmen's Compensation Act, which covered not only construction workers but other workers as well.

For 46 years, the "Scaffold Act" lay dormant and unused.

Then, in the mid 1960s an injured construction worker found that he could not only collect under the Workmen's Compensation Act for his injury, but also under the "Scaffold Act" to sue the contracting firm his employer was working for and collect a second time for the same injury.

In more recent years, Illinois courts have broadened the definition of a "scaffold" to include almost anything—even a board lying on the ground—so as to distort the Act beyond any semblance of its original intent.

Workmen's compensation payments in Illinois already are considered to be among the most generous in the country. With the repeal of the "Scaffold Act," some construction workers today have been able to collect a second or third time for the same injury, even four times from an owner, an architect, an engineer or some other non-responsible party for an injury he or she already has been compensated for.

That hardly seems fair. More importantly, perhaps, it serves to increase the cost of construction—for which we all pay.

And it puts Illinois contractors at a disadvantage with competitors from most other states that have repealed their "Scaffold Acts." And when Illinois contractors lose business, we all lose jobs.

Construction workers risk serious injury every day. They have a right to safe working conditions and to be compensated when they are injured.

But the safety regulations provided for in the "Scaffold Act" have long since been replaced by rules from state and federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

And the proper vehicle for seeing that workers are compensated when injured is the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The vast majority of states repealed their "Scaffold Acts" after enacting workmen's compensation laws.

An article in the University of Illinois Law Review in 1975 concluded that the "Scaffold Act" has "divorced its original purposes... and must, therefore, be repealed or amended to reflect modern ideas of compensation."

The bill (SB 888) to repeal the "Scaffold Act" has again been introduced in the Illinois General Assembly by Senator Roger Keats, a Winnetka Republican. It receives support. Repeal is long overdue.

charged

Granite City police filed charges at 12:20 p.m. yesterday against former Assistant Granite City Fire Chief Charles Hileman, 35, of 2330 Lynch Ave., charging him in connection with incidents near his car and a trading shop in the Plaza Shopping Center in the 2400 block of Nameki Road April 23.

Hileman has been a patient in St. Elizabeth Medical Center since the incidents, so charges were not filed until he was released yesterday and appeared before Chief of Police Ronald J. Veizer.

Hileman is charged with contributing to the sexual delinquency of a minor, unlawful use of a vehicle and unlawful possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

Authorities said Hileman is on probation after pleading guilty in December, 1977, to three felony counts of theft for allegedly obtaining possession on three occasions of collector's items stolen in burglaries in Tennessee.

He was placed on three years of probation by Circuit Judge Joseph Barr and was ordered to pay a $1,000 fine and court costs.

The latest charges stem from an incident in the early morning hours of April 24 when a 17-year-old woman alleged she was living in a mobile home supplied and furnished to her by Hileman.

She alleged he had all the furnishings removed and taken to his shop.

A friend of hers, Ronald L.

There are stirrings that the Illinois General Assembly may finally take action this spring to reform the state's overly liberal unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation laws that have been handcuffing business expansion and costing our

And the proper vehicle for seeing that workers are compensated when injured is the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The vast majority of states repealed their "Scaffold Acts" after enacting workmen's compensation laws.

An article in the University of Illinois Law Review in 1975 concluded that the "Scaffold Act" has "divorced its original purposes... and must, therefore, be repealed or amended to reflect modern ideas of compensation."

The bill (SB 888) to repeal the "Scaffold Act" has again been introduced in the Illinois General Assembly by Senator Roger Keats, a Winnetka Republican. It receives support. Repeal is long overdue.

Dr. Strotheide addresses group

"How the Chiropractor Treats the Auto Accident Victim" was the topic of a speech given by Dr. E. L. Strotheide, D.C., at the April meeting of the Southwestern Illinois Claim Adjusters Association, held at the Round Table Restaurant in Collinsville.

Dr. Strotheide emphasized to the group that early treatment of the automobile accident victim is vital, because if not treated promptly, an acute spinal injury can develop into a chronic or permanent spinal weakness that is difficult to correct.

Wayne Brammeier, president of the association, remarked that the April meeting was the best attended in many months and attracted insurance claim adjusters from many companies in the southern Illinois area.

Dr. Felicia Koch attends training

Dr. Felicia Koch of Granite City has returned from the 32nd Annual Meeting of the Illinois Academy of Family Physicians at the Holiday Inn Mart Plaza, Chicago. Dr. Koch was one of a thousand family doctors from throughout Illinois who attended this postgraduate seminar.

The meeting was designed to up-date the knowledge and skills of practicing family physicians. Those physicians who participated studied in many areas, such as hearing loss, nosocomial infection, blood gas analysis, skeletal trauma, perinatal fetal evaluation, thoracic outlet syndrome, drug abuse, thyroid tests and immune deficiency.

The Illinois Academy is a chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians, formed in 1947 to promote high standards of medical care and to increase the number of medical graduates entering family practice.

At the present time in the nation there are more than 373 three-year residency programs with approximately 6,500 young medical people training to be family physicians.

Upon completion of these programs, the doctors will be eligible to take family practice board examination, which will enable them to be certified specialists in Family Practice.

Members of the Academy, in order to maintain their membership, must produce evidence of having completed at least 150 hours of approved postgraduate study every three years. Attendance at this, the Illinois Academy's 32nd Annual meeting, provided 12 to 22 hours of the 50 hours of study credit that each doctor needs for the current year.

State board recommends local testing of student competency

A statewide minimum competency test should not be mandated for all Illinois students, according to the Illinois State Board of Education's Planning and Program Committee.

Instead, the committee believes local school districts should have an ongoing program of assessing student achievement and educational programs.

The committee's decision on statewide minimum competency testing came after two years of staff research, plus testimony gathered at public hearings across the state.

Reaffirming the Board's commitment to local control of schools, the committee endorsed State Superintendent of Education Joseph M. Cronin's legislative recommendations on assessing student achievement.

Accountability is a strong component of the plan, which recognizes the importance of assuring the public that year that students are obtaining at least a minimal level of achievement.

Through policies developed by local school boards, schools would not only assess student achievement but also the effectiveness of their educational programs.

Minimal levels of student achievement would be established in local policies along with documentation of direct relationships between a student's assessment and educational programs.

Criteria for designing local policies would require schools to provide individual student assessment at no less than two elementary grade levels and one secondary grade level.

Also, no student could be denied graduation from school based on any single test.

Local policies would be filed with the State Board of Education. Legislation would be needed to authorize the board to provide monitoring and technical assistance to school districts. Also, additional state funds would be necessary to aid school districts in implementing an assessment and student achievement program.

Board members will discuss the policy and legislative recommendations at their May 8 meeting in Springfield. The board will take final action on the plan in June.

The 77 board's final recommendations will be presented to the Illinois General Assembly. A law enacted in 1978 requires the board to present data and recommendations, on minimum competency testing by June 30.

Planting time for vegetables

By CHRIS DOLL

Area Gardener Adviser

April showers should bring May flowers but 1980 is another late spring. Growth and development are about the same as last year. Cool temperatures have delayed gardening and crop development so that we are 8 to 10 days behind normal.

At this time, the stage is set for the following:

— It's planting time for warm season vegetables. Early May is the normal season for tomatoes, peppers, beans, okra, eggplant, cucumbers, squash, melons, and sweet corn. A few gardeners have made some early season plantings of these crops but now is the best time.

— Transplants need water. Peas, small fruit, or vegetable plants need adequate water for good root development. Even though soils are moist, watering firms the soil around the plants and prevents transplant shock. The addition of soluble fertilizers high in phosphorus to the water will also help.

Rhubarb plants are trying to bloom. This natural development isn't related to this spring, but to nature. For best yields, keep the flower heads cut out so that the growth is forced into the leaves and stalks. Rhubarb can be eaten after cold temperatures if no injury symptoms are visible.

Many vegetable plantings are overcrowded. Vegetable plants need adequate space for optimum development. Thin lettuce, onions, beets, carrots, greens, and turnips to the spacing indicated on the seed package or handbook so they have room to grow.

Some insects are hungry. Flea beetles (little black or gray insects that jump and hide from you) are on radishes, sweet corn, potatoes, and are waiting for eggplant. Cutworms are waiting for beans or your transplants. Watch for these pests and treat with carbaryl or diazinon according to the label on the package.

Repeat plantings to extend harvest season later. Crops such as cabbage, sweet corn, beans, kohlrabi, and radishes have short harvest periods and this can be extended by making more plantings. Sweet corn is best planted every week for continuous harvest during the summer. Another method to extend harvest is to plant several varieties with different maturity dates. This works well with cabbage and sweet corn.

Bearing fruit plants need spraying. This is the season for rapid growth of fruit and leaves, whereby they grow out of a protective pesticide covering. All fruits should be sprayed immediately after the majority of the flower petals have fallen. It is also the time when protection is needed from the many insects and diseases that are active. A spray program on a 7 to 10 day schedule should give good protection at this time.

Keep weeds from getting established. The secret to weed control is to stay ahead of them. Shallow cultivation or hoeing is the best way to kill seedling weeds. Mulches will prevent them from growing. Apply Dacel to new strawberry plantings that are weed-free.

Train fruit plants right. On new strawberry plantings, blossoms should be removed to conserve energy within the plant. New grapes should be trained to one or two shoots, with all other shoots removed or pinched back. On young trees, try to cut shoots that will become the leader and/or scaffold branches and pinch out the growing point of competing shoots.

Keep asparagus harvested. Asparagus should be harvested so that fern leaves do not develop. This will keep new spears coming. Harvesting may continue until early June on established plantings.

Plant healthy transplants. Good, vigorous, green transplants that are ready to grow in your garden are the best to plant. If they are pale green, yellow, brown, crooked, or with spotted leaves, it may be best to look for healthy plants.

South finds out that Kahoks are for real

GRANITE CITY — The Collinsville Kahoks proved to the Granite City South Warriors Tuesday night that people have expected from one day of the current baseball season, and what many area teams have already found to be true.

With a 9-2 win in the first game and a 3-1 win in the second game, the Kahoks posted notice to the effect that, yes, they are for real, and, certainly, they will be heard from as the season winds into tournament play.

If there are any doubts about either of those ideas lingering around South after a glance of hitters, much to Kahok coach Russ Keene's delight. "The reason we've been winning is our hitting," Keene said. "We didn't hit last year and we didn't win. This year we've been scoring some runs and winning some games." Simple as that.

Of course, five Warrior errors — three in the first game and two in the nightcap — surley didn't hurt the Kahok attack. According to South coach Babe Champion, the errors, combined with the large number of walks allowed by Warrior pitching, made up a large part of the gap separating the two teams.

"There's no doubt, they're pretty good," Champion said of the Kahoks. "But at 16 and three, they didn't blow us out all that bad. We had a lot of young kids on the mound, but the errors killed us."

South errors were responsible for Collinsville's first two runs in the second game. And that turned out to be the difference in the contest. In the first inning, with one out, Collinsville's Rod Woods singled to left field. He went on to second when Warrior left fielder Keith Nutria misplayed the ball.

Todd Miller followed with a grounder to third that South's Mark Clark bobbled momentarily, then picked up, sending a wild throw over first base into foul territory.

The error scored Woods from second and sent Miller third, where he scored on a wild pitch.

Although he was responsible for neither, South starting pitcher Tom McGowan was saddled with a two-run deficit almost from the start of the game.

But the junior pitcher silenced the Kahoks during the next three innings.

And as if in repayment for its early slips, the Warrior defense pulled off some sparkling fielding plays to help out. In the second inning, Rick Daily jumped above first base to pull down a sharp, high-bouncing grounder, tagged a Collinsville runner, and stepped on first for an unassisted double play. And in the seventh inning, baseman Kevin Sykes dived toward second to pick off a line drive and flipped to first for another double play.

But the Kahoks managed to score a third run, nonetheless, in the fifth on a double by Bob Frain and an RBI single by Robert Samabria.

The Warriors scored their only run in the bottom of the fifth when Hondo Ambuehl

North too much for Cahokia in loop game

By TOM SCHOCKER
For the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — From the bleachers, it looks like Granite City North pitcher Kevin Cripps keeps getting better and better with each game. But even when his own coach thinks he doesn't look good he comes through. "He doesn't give a bad effort," said Steele coach Bob Stiegemeier, "but he didn't look as sharp today." One would have to ask Cripps' opponents if they felt the same way. Throwing magic, Cripps struck out 12, enroute to a 9-3 victory over Cahokia Monday in a Gateway East Conference game.

Although overpowering Cahokia, Stiegemeier had mixed feelings about his club's effort. "It was a big win," he said, "despite not playing well. We were just not aggressive enough at the plate or on the field. We haven't had practice in a while. Maybe we should." Knocking Cripps around for a pair of runs in the third, Cahokia's thoughts of breaking the Steeler hurler in the fourth were premature. Cripps carved up the Comanche batters, setting the side down on strikes. "I was just trying to get beat at them," said Cripps. "It just got me mad that they scored those runs." Cahokia did not learn, touched him for a run in the fifth. Throwing strikes, Cripps again faced only three batters in the sixth while recording three more strikeouts. "I was throwing a curve ball," said Cripps, "and hoping it would break. When I had them going, I'd throw a split-fingered fast ball that knuckles, but just cut it a change-up."

Whether a curve or a change-up, Cripps had things his way. Putting the finishing touches on an already masterfully pitched game, he struck out the final batter. Giving up five hits, Cripps suffered a loss of control only once, walking one man while allowing just seven Comanches to reach base.

At the plate, the Steelers looked respectable in all but one inning. North' racked around Cahokia's starting pitcher Greg Malone. He pitched the Comanches to a win over Edwardsville Friday. "Malone's not a bad pitcher," said Stiegemeier. "He did a job on Edwardsville." But Malone had to deal with Bob Ford and Bob Batey who produced most of North's runs.

Rapping out a double and a single on the day, Ford picked up three RBI with his first coming in the fifth. The Steelers scored three times in that frame while their cause was helped by two Cahokia errors. Ford's remaining two RBI came in the sixth as he smashed a line drive that took one hop before hitting the 360 foot mark in centerfield. Brian Grey and Batey scored on the play.

Batey tuned his piece of lumber in the third. A sharp single sent Mike Robertson and Dennis Page home, putting the Steelers ahead to stay. Remaining in stride with Stiegemeier's expectations, North extended its conference win streak to four games. Posting a league record of 4-2, the Steelers are still in contention for a conference title. "We're still in the running," said Stiegemeier. "We have to beat South and Althoff. That will put us at 6-2 and that is all we can do. We can just hope for someone to help us."

During their winning streak, the Cougars' mound staff has apparently held its own. Fernando Aguirre has the best ERA of 2.95; next, and in order, are: Tom Ritzheimer's 3.4 and 4.05 ERA; southpaw senior John Mueller's 3.3 and 5.07 ERA; Ted Smith's 3.4 and 5.33 ERA; John Lakin's 2.3 and 5.93 ERA; Kent Taylor's 2.0 and 6.07 ERA; and finally Doug Gremstad's 4.2 mark and 6.99 ERA.

Overall, the Cougars are outperforming their opponents 388 to 292, but in the field they have a deficit when it comes to errors. They have committed 80 to their foes' 72.

ALL IN A ROW. Granite City South second baseman Kevin Sykes (center) gets ready to turn a double-play Tuesday at home in his team's 10-1 loss to Collinsville. Coming in behind to back up Sykes is shortstop Rich Cope. Coming into second is Scott Carson of Collinsville. South also lost the second game of the twin bill, 3-1.

Cougars riding high

Special to the Press-Record
EDWARDSVILLE — With a 21-20 for the season, the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville baseball team is headed down the home stretch riding a six-game winning streak.

This week's official baseball statistics of the NCAA Statistics Service office have two members of Coach Gary (Doc) Collins' Cougars in the national leaders in NCAA Division II. Freshman George Vogel of Pattonville, Mo., has won baseball junior from Libertyville, is setting a record batting pace for the Cougars with a .386 average, including six doubles, two triples and four homers, and is second in runs-batted-in with 26. Nationally, Thomas is 16th.

Second-best hitter behind Thomas is SIUE's top pitcher, Tom Ritzheimer, who doubles as an outfielder while not hurrying. He is hitting at a .378 clip and is tied with Jay Krukman in RBI's with 24. Krukman, recently in a bit of a slump, has seen his hitting drop down around .200 but has brought it back up to .241.

Third in the SIUE "hit parade" is the Cougars' top slugger, Tom Burg of Collinsville. Burg has blasted 11 doubles (the record is 14 set by Bill Lee in 1977), two triples and six home runs. He leads in RBI with 41.

Coming on fast is sophomore catcher Mike Stewart, who's hitting at a .354 rate with six doubles and a homer.

Pitcher-batter is first-year outfielder-catcher, Tony Catlett of Roxana High. He's hitting .326.

Next is senior Gary Hajduk with 22. The Niles, Ill., catcher-outfielder is the best batter with a .329 average, including five key homers.

Next, in order of the averages, are: Larry Maden, .301; Granite Cityan Tom Greco, .300; Ed Kopff, .283; Rich Kanther, .286;

South field at 12:30 p.m. Saturday. In Game 7, the winner of Game 1 will play the winner of Game 3. In Game 8, the winner of Game 2 will face the winner of Game 4. At 10 a.m. in Game 9, the winner of Game 5 will play the winner of Game 6 for the consolation championship at 5 p.m.

No more 'points' games Soccer, grid changes in store next season

BLOOMINGTON — A new concept in the summer in which the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Boys Soccer Playoffs are to be conducted is among several major changes to be implemented in the conduct of fall activities.

In addition to changes approved for the fall sport activities terms and conditions by the Board of Directors, a new by-law requires a school must have an established team which engages in at least six (6) interscholastic contests in that sport during the season in order for the school to be eligible to earn points in the team portion of the state series competition.

Individuals entered in state series competition by the member school may attend while being eligible to earn individual honors, but they will not be eligible to earn team honors for their school.

The by-law change was approved in a vote of member schools in the annual referendum process.

The Board of Directors voted to rescind the portion of its policy regarding minimum number of schools entering a state series decided before the Board which the teams will be classified has been changed. No longer will the average conference enrollment be used to determine pre-season classification of conferences (and the schools in them). Schools will be classified according to their own current school year enrollments once all qualifiers for the playoffs have been determined following the ninth weekend of the season.

Once the 80 (in a five-class system) or 96 (in a six-class system) qualifying teams have been determined using the traditional IHSA selection method, they will be ranked in order according to enrollments.

The smallest 16 schools will compete in Class 1A, the next 16 smallest in Class 2A, etc., until the five (and/or six) classes have been determined. The IHSA Office will pair the teams in each class on a geographic principle, but beginning this year the host schools for the preliminary round games will not be determined until the pairings are made. Independent and other "At Large" selections may be responsible to host a preliminary round game.

SOCCER — No longer will points earned during the regular season be used for seeding teams in the sectional competition nor will the sectional tournaments be conducted in a round-robin format.

The Board has voted to return to the conduct of the Boys Soccer Tournament series in a single-elimination format. All tournament levels in a revised plan will be single elimination. Teams will be assigned to first-level and correlated level competition on the basis of geography. Final structure of the 1980 series still must be formulated.

In recent years, schools submitted their playoff schedule to the IHSA Office, noting 10 games in which points were to be awarded for the outcome of the game and the final record of that opponent. These points totals were used in seeding teams into sectional tournaments. Four teams advancing from the sectional competition then played a round-robin to determine a single advance to the eight-team, single-elimination State Final Tournament.

He does it all

You can tell the real athletes. They're the ones who keep quiet about themselves. They don't like to brag. They realize just how important they are and also how important they are in the overall scope of things in this troubled world. They don't brag. They let their performances on the field or on the court do the talking for them.

STEVE ADAMS

In Steve Adams' case, he lets his performances on the track and in the pole vault do his talking. Adams, a senior at Granite City South, is one of the premier pole vaulters in the area. But he hasn't come easy. He has worked hard, along with his coach Mel Bunting, to improve his vaulting. Bunting is now the head coach at South. Previous to this season, however, he was an assistant. One of his main areas of concentration was the vault. He was a double-winner in the pole vault and the 330 lb hurdles Monday against Collinsville. Last Saturday, he was the main thrust of South's pole vault win at the Gateway East Conference Relays. For those reasons, he has been chosen as this week's Ponderosa Press Record Player of the Week.

alked, went to second on Kenny Wilson's single. Moved to third on a balk by Collinsville's Scott Campbell, then scored on Clark's single. Other than that, South was pretty much frustrated by Collinsville's trio of pitchers, Barry Wilson, Jeff McDaniel, and Campbell. The Kahok pitching crew threw South five hits, and walked two other batters. But in the clutch, Collinsville came through. South stranded a total of six runners in the game. "Our offense is doing pretty well," Champion said. "At least we're getting some people on base. Our problem is still coming up with the big hit."

Collinsville, on the other hand, had no such trouble. Not in the second game, and especially not in the first. "The Kahoks scored two runs in the first inning of the first game on three hits — Todd Miller's single, Barry Wilson's triple, and Mike Hefflin's double. In the second, an error by Ambuehl brouned in Jeff Church, and in the third Keith Throm singled in Randy McEwen then Scott Carson singled in Throm. The Warriors used four pitchers trying to stop the Kahoks' heavy hitting, but their success was limited to scoreless fourth and seventh innings. In the fifth inning, Vince Plantz and Carson combined singles for a run, and in the sixth, Collinsville added three more. The inning could have been worse for South, though. A questionable ground-rule double hit by McEwen drove in Dave Burg and Wilson, but McEwen and the runner ahead of him, Rod Woods were forced to stop at second and third. "I was watching the fence line where the ball went out," Keene said.

Center for women will open Sunday

Every Woman's Center, a new resource for women in Community College District 122, will open officially on Sunday, May 4. An open house from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. will introduce the facility and its director to the public.

Director Patricia Ann Brian says it is intended to be a focal point for educational and cultural enrichment. "It is," she adds, "a place of ideas, changes, information, referral, personal counseling, and people actively reaching out to every woman in the community."

The need for the center has been recognized for some time. Frank Gornick, director of counseling at Belleville Area College, says. He comments that even woman goes through seasons of change in her life—some planned for, some not anticipated, and some precipitated by crisis.

Still other changes, he says, are simply chosen to add new fulfillment and interest to a woman's life. The Every Woman's Center will provide personal counseling, aid in career changes, offer support groups and seminars in parenting, give rational assertiveness training, and spotlight developing human potential, divorce reality, study skills and other kinds of programs, ranging from couples' communication to stress management.

One of the first programs planned by the center is in cooperation with the governor's office. It is for women owners and operators of businesses and for those who would like to start their own businesses.

To be held at Fischer's Restaurant on May 16, the program will be an all-day event.

Available through the center will be interest and aptitude testing, the BAC computerized vocational information system, and academic advising.

Library Day is Wednesday

By proclamation of Governor James R. Thompson, Wednesday, April 30, was Library Day in Illinois.

In conjunction with Illinois' Library Day, Robert J. Stack, director of the Granite City Public Library, has urged citizens of Granite City to take advantage of the public library.

With inflation at an annual rate of 18 per cent, Stack urged patrons to save money by borrowing from the library. From books to records, the library has the latest best sellers and the oldest classics, all available to every citizen of Granite City at no extra cost, Stack said.

Money isn't the only thing people can save by using the library. The library's information and referral staff is trained to find the answers, to questions fast, saving time, frustration, and expensive gas. Granite Cityans can get answers to a wide variety of questions by telephoning the reference department at the main library (876-7477), he added.

The Granite City Public Library can also help make money by providing access to the latest financial news and investment services without expensive subscription costs, Stack commented.

Illinois Library Day is the perfect time to come to the Granite City Public Library and discover how to save by borrowing. The library director added. The main library is located downtown at 200 Delmar Ave. and the branch library is at No. 6 Nantux Village Shopping Center.

The P.N. Hirsch & Co., which operates stores in downtown Granite City and at 4 Gaslight Plaza, Pontoon Beach, is observing its 50th anniversary this week. The company first was established during the depression year of 1930 when Philip N. Hirsch, then 21, borrowed $200 to buy a bankrupt dry goods store in Jonesboro, Ill. Joined shortly afterward by a brother and two brothers-in-law, within eight years the company was operating eight small-town stores. In 1938 a warehouse, buying and accounting headquarters was established in St. Louis. By 1959, P.N. Hirsch & Co. had 72 junior department stores with an annual sales volume of more than $15 million.

Hirsch firm anniversary

In 1964 the business was acquired by International Shoe Co. At that time there were 102 stores operated by Hirsch. Today there are 30 stores in 20 states employing 3,500 persons.

Farm tour by urban pupils

David Brooks, a carrier for the Press-Record, along with classmates Terry McIntyre, David Burmeister, Joe Danford and Eddie Evans, had a grand tour of the Waldo Kellbach farm east of Highland last week. The Parkview Elementary School students were accompanied by their teachers, Joyce Jellen, Sandy Schmetke and Joan Roberts.

The tour, sponsored by the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) of the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, was one of several tours conducted this month for urban elementary students in Madison County. The tour was conducted by Waldo and Evelyn Kellbach, who provided opportunity for the students to pet and handle the animals, including several new calves.

Geraldine Bower, University of Illinois extension adviser, said 80 teachers in 11 elementary schools in Collinsville and the Quad-City area used teaching packets prepared by the Cooperative Extension Service to teach basic nutrition concepts to 1,742 students in January through March.

The tours, being conducted at several farms in the county, highlight the classroom experience by providing opportunity for urban children to learn, through observation, where meat, dairy and other food products originate and how they reach the marketplace.

Many children taking the tours have never been out of their urban environment nor seen a farm animal apart from books or television, the adviser noted.

The Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program, operating in 20 Illinois counties, is a nationwide effort to help families obtain knowledge and develop skills for improving their daily diets and food management practices.

In Madison County, teaching is done by program assistants who are hired and trained by the U of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service to work with adults and youths in both individual and group settings.

Area women recane chairs

Solid wood chairs of all ages, shapes, sizes and decorations were recently re-caned at a workshop attended by members of the Madison County Homemakers' Extension Association.

Instructions for the "hands and on" workshop were Herbert and Lucille Brase of Hamel who have found caning an exciting way to enjoy their retirement years. The two-day workshop included the basics of caning, the Malaysian origin of the natural fiber, and individualized instruction. Attending the workshop were: Lillian Adams, Betty Blumberg, Rosemary Clark, Helen Cox, Lou Johnson, Sue Klaus, Bernice Kolb, Jean Linn, Shirley Mills, Marie Mindrup, Madge Ramsey, Delone Rabe, Carol Rhinhardt, Bernice Roedgers, Anna Shoemate, Esther Vasileff, Laura Ulfers, and Naomi Zeisel.

The workshop was sponsored by the U of I Cooperative Extension Service, 900 Hillsboro, Edwardsville.

Student honored in competition

A Granite City High School student, Allen Jorgenson, received recognition for his performance in the Ninth Annual MacMurray College Math-Science-Computer Contest held in Jacksonville, Ill.

Placing tenth in Class II (juniors) of the open division of the math portion of the competition, Jorgenson was awarded an honors certificate. The Math contestants were required to take an examination designed to test their knowledge of pre-college level mathematics.

Over 400 students from 23 Illinois and Missouri high schools participated in the contest which took place on the MacMurray campus.

Balloons of every size, shape, color and description filled the air over Blair School in West Madison last week as students in the Title I reading program were rewarded for their work by releasing helium filled balloons.

The balloons bore messages asking persons finding them to write to the school and tell the students where the balloons landed. After the students released their balloons, Principal Bernard Long was given one to set free. "There's a little kid in all of us," a spectator said after seeing the look on Principal Long's face as the balloon ascended.

In the photo at the top left, the children release their balloons from the school playground and then each runs after his balloon as it leaves the area.

Above, the balloons filled the clear sky as they caught a breeze headed southwest, toward St. Louis.

Left, a colorful billboard in the school reminds students that the balloon festival is near.

Clara Horton, a teacher, and Ann Coleman, a para-professional, organized the balloon festival, rewarding students for the books they read and the knowledge they gained through reading.

Weapons charges against 2

Leo J. Six Jr., 29, of 1324 Seventh St., Madison, and Steven P. Six, 23, of 1810 August St., Apt. 6, were charged with unlawful use of weapons after they allegedly fired shots from a car near downtown Granite City early this week. The younger Six also was charged with failure to have a firearm owner's identification card.

Officers first were told shots had been fired in the vicinity of a tavern and then near some railroad cars by passengers in an auto being driven in an erratic manner.

Police searched for the vehicle and stopped it at 20th and Omaha streets. A loaded .357 magnum pistol allegedly was found under the driver's seat and a loaded .22 caliber pistol was found under the passenger's seat, police said. A holster and a box containing 49 rounds of ammunition also were found in the auto, police alleged.

BATTERY IS ALLEGED

Harlan W. Hogue, 28, of 3001 Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested at 7:10 p.m. Monday on a battery complaint signed by Della Coleman of the 4000 block of Kirkpatrick Homes. Mrs. Coleman alleged Hogue argued with her 11-year-old daughter, Dennise Carol Smith, and then struck her face. Hogue was released on $35 cash bond.

Stop Sign.

It's a fact that more than 9 out of every 10 people looking for a home recognize the familiar brown and gold CENTURY 21 sign. It is so widely recognized that every day over 1,600 homes are sold by CENTURY 21 people from coast to coast. In 1979 alone, that resulted in a staggering 579,000 closings.

Wouldn't you rather list your house with the organization that more people have put their trust in?

Just call your CENTURY 21 Neighborhood Professional. And let our stop sign start working for you.

Auto test plan example of tight federal control

Statement presented by Bruce Armstrong of Granite City, prepared for the East St. Louis regional hearing of the Illinois legislature's Joint Committee on Mandatory Vehicle Emission Inspection and Maintenance.

I hold a deep opposition to the mandatory emission testing program, and any initiative which is, or has been, coercively imposed upon the state by the federal government either through the use, or credible threat, of sanctions.

A good case can be made that it is in every car owner's self-interest to obtain maximum performance from a vehicle through proper care and maintenance.

A still better case can be made that, short of economic extinction, whatever is necessary to protect the environment must be done. No responsible official or balanced individual would argue otherwise. However, this is not what the hearing is all about.

Centralization. That is the real issue. As this suggests, mandatory emission testing is just another symbol that the federal government is everywhere, noticeable, moving fast and furiously in the direction of total control.

I would like to first ask the committee to step back and take a long view of the program, to consider for a change such an oft-mentioned subject as the historical roots of a strong movement toward socialism. Also, the consequent pretext that a bureaucracy must enter into every detail of everyone's life, a cynical development that spreads over a wide area and gives impetus to the legislation.

Certainly there is ground for misgiving. Who can deny that a pattern has been set? North, south, east and west, governments are falling.

The habitual response is to surrender, to turn a blind eye to the ever-growing and dangerous power of the central government at the expense of the states, and to cave in to its bullying demands with the customary feeble excuse that a failure to capitulate will result in the loss of federal funds.

Because of this misguided policy, who can disagree that today the states are as much hostages of the federal government, and its elaborate army of planners and regulators, as are the Americans held in Iran by the Ayatollah Khomeini and his Revolutionary Council?

Who can disregard the many manifestations, even fears, that underlie an air of artificial serenity lurks a dark shadow of a New Order regime, not benign as ours was meant to be, but a modern era of despotism unlike anything that has ever existed before; a permanent dictatorship, harsh, murderous and omnipresent, with a mountain of petty, uncompromising laws, uniform and minute?

I know, I attended more than a few top-level strategy sessions, both to carry out the aims of precisely this kind of barbarous political evolution, and to devise the tactics of subverting the United States government—indeed, all non-socialist governments—by cold calculation, by direct plan, and by timetable. This is not an insignificant statement; it is a major statement.

Personal observations aside, who can refute that a general tendency along the path of all-embracing socialism was experienced when the United Nations, the final seat of global government, proclaimed an annual day of remembrance, Earth Day, April 22, 1970, the 100th anniversary of Lenin's birth, when millions all over the world deceitfully honored his memory by expressing a touching concern for the environment.

The mandatory emission testing program also has other legacies, one obvious, the other less so. By this I mean that average pipefitters cannot add to the government's overall influence. Control of the automobile industry can do so, after control of market distribution, installers, and do-it-yourself mechanics.

Control is the main factor in the program. Washington was inspired to claim jurisdiction, by way of an extraordinary measure, Memorandum M-1A, which became official on March 3, 1980.

Here is government action that will have a lasting, and profound effect on an entire industry.

It will communicate a real tragedy to a lot of ordinary citizens, by saddling them with a heavy financial burden, and perhaps cause them to be deprived of their transportation. Yet, the measure is hardly known to exist.

What gives the memorandum special significance is that deriving from it, and characteristic of the times, early in May 1980 a full set of federal regulations covering the manufacture of replacement parts for cars will be published.

This will gradually place the auto industry, including mechanics, dealers and individual owners, under the federal government's thumb.

It should be clear, though it is not always so, that through a portion of the regulations, the federal government will determine how replacement parts are to be manufactured. At the same time, M-1A will help it certify to be equal in every respect to the government's discipline, by forbidding any person or business to alter or modify an automobile engine in any manner whatsoever.

First in importance, after the requirement that all replacement parts must be certified to be equal in every respect to the government-approved original equipment part, is the disturbing fact that, presently, it is a violation of M-1A even to test a replacement part on an automobile engine.

Because tampering, with its concomitant miseries, is not unrelated to the emission testing program—and because of the scale and scope of what Washington thinks is tampering, it is essential to discuss it in relation to the manufacturer and the car owner.

The least confusing way to describe the situation is to start with the manufacturer. To avoid running afoul of government regulations and penalties, the procedure is a combination of three steps.

First, application must be submitted to the tampering section of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for exemption to test. Second, after overcoming numerous obstacles, and delays in obtaining approval, the manufacturer must have the device installed by a state-approved agency. Third, all tests must be supervised by the same agency.

Woe to anyone who deviates from this routine, since this is automatically regarded as tampering. There are simply no exceptions to this order. So far as an inventor is concerned—that is, something enterprising person who might wish to develop something for the automobile, on his own time and with his own money—the same tight restrictions apply.

If one is unaware of their purpose, the rules come out as a fests of unnecessary, unwarranted and wholesale intervention into private initiative.

The regulations establish that all replacement parts for automobiles must be installed by certified state approved installers in accordance with EPA regulations.

A failure to comply will conclude in severe penalties, so much so that an uncertified installer, other than the owner of the vehicle, will be fined a fixed $10,000, or one year in jail, or both.

Nothing is more remarkable—though to believers in a mighty bureaucracy, nothing is more natural—than to obtain the state's cooperation in a scheme to transfer additional authority to the federal government, by threatening to cut off its funds.

There is little basis for optimism that this difficulty with an overbearing bureaucracy will be disentangled soon, because, by the year 2000, 75 percent of the total work force will be on the government's payroll.

As an example of what to expect from the mandatory emission testing program in Illinois, it is well to review what is happening in the state of New Jersey.

There, upon inspection, if an auto is found to have been tampered with, the owner is ordered to have his car put into compliance. If the offense involves the removal of an emission control, the owner is immediately fined $200.

Unfortunately, that is not the end of it. He must take his car to a certified installer, who has been given carte blanche by the federal government, to replace at his discretion any or all control systems, with a cost of up to $1,500.

Doubtless, there are members of the committee who think that their decision will affect only a limited number of Illinois. They could not be more mistaken.

If the states continue to accede to the government's demands, by 1982 every car in the country will be required to have his car tested.

Because of my highly specialized training as a former secret courier for the United States government, I have spent several years in the area of education, and I am now being accepted by the Illinois State Board of Education. The board expects me to make an appointment in early July.

The board will be assisted in the search process by a team of nationally recognized educators who will conduct the initial screening of applicants to select those who best meet the board's criteria.

Serving on the team will be Dr. Bruce McPherson, professor, Ohio State University School of Education; Dr. Robert L. Green, dean, College of Urban Development, Michigan State University; Dr. Conrad Briner, chairman, Dept. of Education, Claremont Graduate School; and Dr. John Corbally Jr., former president, University of Illinois.

Candidates selected by this team will be recommended to a board committee, which after extensive review will recommend several candidates for personal interviews with the full board.

Dr. W. Deane Wiley, professor of Educational Administration at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will serve as coordinator of the search. Applications or nominations should be submitted directly to Dr. W.

GARAGE IS LOOTED

An undetermined number of auto body repair tools were stolen from the garage at Courtney Motors Limited, 1150 Niedringhaus Ave., Bob Stoppkotte, the owner, told police at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Wood over a window was removed to gain entry. Stoppkotte said the $78 battery from his tow truck also had been stolen during the previous 24 hours.

Spring style show at South

On Tuesday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m., the fashion merchandising classes of Granite City High School South will present a Spring fashion show for the public. It will be held in the high school auditorium.

Tickets will be sold at the door, 50 cents for adults and children under 10 admitted free.

Fashion merchandising students study historical and current fashion trends. The students study the coordination and selection of clothing and accessories, and also study fashion promotion, display and advertising.

The girls modeling spring fashions are from the GCCHS South fifth and sixth hour fashion merchandising classes. They will model clothes that would be appropriate for the prom, Six Flags, the park, the beach, and a romantic restaurant, and persons attending will also see the latest styles for a Spring wedding.

This fashion show is a learning experience. The girls divide into committees for publicity, stage crew, choreographer and commenting.

Besides modeling, each girl is assigned a certain task vital to the production of the show.

Mrs. Cathy Rishold is teacher of the class. Approximately 40 girls will model in the show.

Applications will be accepted through May 23. July 1 has been established by the board as the target date for selecting a replacement for State Superintendent of Education Joseph M. Cronin. Cronin has resigned, effective July 25, to accept the presidency of the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corp.

"Many challenges face elementary and secondary education in the 1980s," said

State Board Chairman Donald F. Muirhead. "The board is committed to selecting the best person to work with us in meeting those challenges."

"With the assistance of distinguished individuals who have agreed to serve, we should be able to meet that goal by our target date."

The State Board of Education is seeking advice from education organizations in Illinois on the qualities they would like to see in the state superintendent.

Warm weather means high ozone levels

Warm, balmy days are just around the corner and with them will come increasing ozone levels.

Beginning today, and continuing through Sept. 30, a daily ozone summary will be issued at 3 p.m. over the Illinois Weather Wire by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency in cooperation with the Chicago Department of Consumer Services and the Cook County Department of Environmental Control.

The daily summary lists the highest ozone levels at monitoring sites across the state for the current and the previous day. This year's ozone monitoring network consists of 44 sites, three of which are background sites in non-urban areas.

Additionally, a mobile monitoring van will be utilized to measure concentrations in areas where elevated ozone levels have been projected but no historical monitoring data exists.

Ozone, a pervasive secondary pollutant, is formed by a complex photochemical reaction of sunlight with hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides in the presence of warm temperatures. Most hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides in the atmosphere come from industrial and automotive exhaust emissions, the result of burning petroleum products and other fossil fuels.

The Ambient Air Monitoring Section of the IEPA's Division of Air Pollution Control is responsible for issuing the daily ozone summary for the state. It gathers data from 33 IEPA monitors, five operated by the Chicago Department of Consumer Services, four by the Cook County DEC, and one each owned by Bedford Park and Granite City.

Dan Goodwin, manager of DAPC, said, "From the point of view of the health and well-being of the public, it is extremely important that we have accurate ozone data. It has been shown that persons suffering from respiratory ailments and cardiovascular problems are particularly susceptible to ozone and, as the levels climb, their problems increase."

"To more clearly define and more accurately represent elevated ozone levels in populated areas, the ozone monitoring network is being modified and expanded."

"These network changes are beginning now and will be completed by Jan. 1, 1983." The warm, hazy days of late spring and summer are almost certain tips that high ozone levels are imminent, especially during the summer months when the sun goes down, but start building again during the late morning of the following day.

The IEPA has developed a four-stage alert system utilizing increasing severe control measures as ozone levels rise.

The first level is the Ozone Advisory which is declared when levels reach 70 parts per billion (ppb) for a two-hour average and this level is expected to be reached again the following day.

A Yellow Alert is declared when ozone levels reach 120 ppb for one hour and weather conditions are such that this level is expected to be reached again the following day.

A Red Alert, which has never happened in this state, occurs when levels reach 300 ppb and are expected to occur again the following day.

An Emergency is declared when levels hit 500 ppb and are expected to recur the following day. There has never been an Emergency in Illinois.

As the intensity of the alert progresses, those with respiratory and cardiovascular ailments are advised to curtail their activities to greater degrees. Health-related problems increase as ozone levels rise. Under the Red Alert, the state has the authority to seek voluntary measures from the power industry and other major pollution sources to reduce their activities to help lower ozone levels. Under the Red and Emergency Alerts, the state has the power to curtail activities on several levels in the area involved. These include the mandatory shutdown of industries burning fossil fuels, the reduction of vehicle movement and the closing of schools.

The daily summary contains the highest two-hour average ozone levels reached up to 2 p.m. that day for all monitoring sites in the state, the highest two-hour average level reached the previous day, and a general statewide forecast of potential ozone levels for the following day. It also lists those areas that have reached or are expected to reach Advisory levels for the day, with weather conditions such that they are expected to recur the following day. New monitoring sites scheduled for development this year will be located in Arlington Heights, Barrington Hills, Bradley, Mossville (north of Peoria), and Rockford. Other IEPA monitors are located in Waukegan, Libertyville, Evanston, Wheaton, Moline, Wood River, Alton, Edwardsville, LaSalle, Marion, Champaign, Robinson, Springfield, Decatur, East St. Louis, Peoria, Peoria Heights, Chicago (Northwestern University), Elgin, Deerfield, South Lockport, Maryville, Loves Park (Rockford), and Quincy.

Bedford Park and Granite City maintain their own monitors. The background monitors are located in rural Macoupin County, Waterloo, and Braidwood.

The IEPA will inform media in an entire region when ozone levels at any monitoring site in that region reach the advisory stage of 70 ppb for the first time. Once a region is placed under this advisory it remains there for the entire season even though levels may not reach 70 ppb every day. These levels will occur during the summer whenever weather conditions are conducive to ozone formation. Special notification will be sent to any area which reaches Yellow Alert levels or above as each such episode occurs. This will usually be done by telephone using a formal news release would not reach the affected area in time.

Illinois meat program found best in nation

Illinois' meat and poultry inspection program has been found to be the best in the nation, based on a random inspection review of processing plants in 32 states by federal authorities.

The unannounced inspection reviews were conducted early this year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's In-Plant Compliance Group, based at Lawrence, Kan.

This marked the first time one federal survey team had ever checked the meat and poultry inspection activities at plants in all the 32 states which have state inspection programs.

The compliance team was organized several years ago to serve as a nationwide surveillance unit which reports directly to the administrative staff of the USDA's Meat and Poultry Inspection Program in Washington, D.C. with the original purpose of evaluating the status of plants operating under the federal program.

While the Illinois Department of Agriculture is now responsible for inspection at nearly 600 plants, the compliance team was assigned by the USDA to check 10 percent of the state-inspected plants in each of the 32 states and 56 in Illinois were chosen for review.

Dr. Paul B. Doby, superintendent of the Illinois Department of Agriculture's Division of Meat, Poultry and Livestock Inspection, said, "We are very pleased to find out that Illinois' rating in this survey topped the nation. In fact, 93 percent of the plants checked in our state were rated as good or excellent."

The USDA is not officially releasing the figures for each state, however, the Illinois Department of Agriculture was advised that the Illinois program received the best rating in the nation, an average of 2.91, of a possible three points, for the 10 percent of the state's plants randomly reviewed by the compliance team.

Dr. Harold Miller, chief of the Illinois Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Meat and Poultry Inspection, and Dr. Doby said they expect the federal compliance team to review the inspection programs at plants in Illinois again sometime in the future, but no prior notice will even be given by the state department of agriculture as to when or where the reviews will occur.

WILL KEEP YOUR HOME NEW LOOKING

"The thick insulation board works just like this foam cup I'm holding — helps you lower your fuel bills."

The expanded plastic foam of the cup protects your hand from the steaming hot coffee. You can hold it and hardly feel the heat. The insulation we are installing works the same way, keeping in heat energy and keeping cold out. In hot summer days it keeps the cool air in and keeps the hot air out.
